

WILD ROOTS PHILOSOPHY

The Wild Roots Fine Arts Center distinguishes itself by offering a holistic approach to study and application of the fine arts, specifically in music and visual art. From the foundational beginnings, our step-by-step guidance will teach students elements that are often overlooked or forgotten in other settings. Proper technique is very important for musicians and artists alike. Without this, students are most likely to take on bad habits and maybe limited in their results. For music students, understanding and reading music is necessary, and opens up many options for them. Because this is the only universal language we have, Wild Roots takes learning how to read music very seriously. We will nurture in a way to where the student truly understands concepts and feels comfortable with continuing to learn.

Rooted in the classical techniques of music and art, students will eventually be able to stem into other directions, if desired. This deeper understanding will be noticed, not only by the student, but also to those that are experiencing the final results.
